Capability in the field of advanced combat clothing has been confirmed with Aero Sekur's contribution to the Italian Future Soldier ('Soldato Futuro') programme. Working as part of an industrial collaboration of market leading development companies, Aero Sekur is responsible for the development of NBC masks/canisters, NBC combat suits including NBC gloves and boots, combat suits, battle dress uniforms, combat boots, sniper suits and over-garments.

The Anglo-Italian company with a dedicated military materials R&D development facility at its headquarters in Aprilia, South of Rome combines advanced materials with innovative construction and design techniques to produce defence apparel with significant weight reduction and performance benefits.

Aero Sekur is recognised as an innovator in the field of permeable NBC suits. The company's introduction of advanced materials into active and outer layers provides a number of benefits including improved protection from NBC agents, increased permeability, greater wearer comfort and enhanced 'wash ability' without impairing the active layer. Additionally, the suits are flame resistant and offer enhanced tear resistance.

Other products in Aero Sekur's established defence apparel portfolio are respirators and masks, combat suits, battle dress uniforms, sniper suits, over-garments, personal camouflage systems and camouflage nets. Features of the company's respirators and masks include low inhalation resistance and exceptional anti-mist properties.

Aero Sekur has a track record dating back over forty years supplying the defence sector and has a global supply capability.
