Aero Sekur, supplier of safety and security products for defence applications, is to exhibit for the first time at Sofex 2010. The company is extending its global presence with an international exhibition programme and the decision to take space at the event in Jordan is set to raise the company's profile to the Middle East military market.

Designed to support ground defence applications, the company's range includes respirators, masks, CBRN protective suits, protective environmental structures, Colpro solutions and advanced combat clothing. Benefits of the NBC suits' design to be highlighted at the show include increased permeability, enhanced resistance and wearer comfort.
