Aero Sekur expertise in permeable NBC combat suit development will be a key feature of the company's display at Eurosatory. Combat clothing, including a sniper suit poncho, will be exhibited alongside other products from the company's defence portfolio including respirators and masks.

Research and development at Aero Sekur's 150,000 square foot Italian manufacturing headquarters has established the company as a global leader in the use of flexible multi-layer materials for military applications. Aero Sekur has a forty year history developing safety and security products for the defence sector.

With its new generation of NBC suits, Aero Sekur has addressed the different, and often conflicting, requirements of defence apparel. The suits offer protection from NBC agents yet are flexible and easy to wear. Washable and re-usable, the clothing withstands the rigours of military life and enables service personnel to operate more effectively in hot climates.

Representatives from Aero Sekur's Ground Defence product division will attend Eurosatory to provide details of defence apparel and other products in the company's range, including protective environmental structures and ColPro systems.
